So what is BPD exactly... Do YOU have the traits??

Borderline Personality Disorder or BPD is one of several behavioral disorders which are often misunderstood in modern society. It is characterized by emotional instability, impulsive tendencies, and risqué behavior without giving a thought to the consequences.

People with BPD tend to come across as capricious, selfish and unpredictable. They tend to exhibit explosive emotional tantrums and outbursts and aggressive behavior, especially when their plans and actions have been thwarted. As such, they often become misunderstood by the people around them, and they might have few healthy social relationships to speak of. They might be thought of as bullies or selfish brats, secretly feared or hated by their peers.

But what really goes on in the mind of someone with BPD? There's more to their behavior than meets the eye. In this book, you will discover the thoughts, motivations, insecurities and fears which fuel the actions of a person with BPD. Lack of impulse control, low self-esteem, and a number of other factors are said to be the root of borderline personality. In fact, experts have also come up with a different name for BPD because it lacks context and could be misleading.

After reading this book, you will finally understand this mental disorder and why people with BPD act the way they do. With insight to their world, you may also understand why they deserve love, compassion, and understanding, instead of hatred and fear.

Although it takes time, BPD can be managed completely—unlike other mental disorders which require a lifetime of medication and close monitoring. From symptoms, causes, and risks to therapy, medication, and recovery, you can find all that and more in this ultimate information and resource book for borderline personality disorder.
