Save a lot of money, protect the environment and have better health by using your baking soda in clever ways!

You might have a grandmother that grew up during The Great Depression. Back then, there wasn't much money around so people were forced to figure out ways to make their money go further. Grandma took a lot of pride in knowing a million different ways to get things done without opening her purse. She loads the laundry for pennies. She could soothe a bee sting or an upset stomach without of a visit to the doctor. She grew the biggest, tastiest tomatoes. She didn't use store-bought detergent or take you to the doctor or hire a gardener—she did it all and a lot more with a fifty-cent box of baking soda. If you looked under Grandma's sink, you would see a plunger, some sponges and a box of baking soda ... but no collection of expensive commercial cleaners, disinfectants, soaps, etc. She never had a lot of money but with baking soda, she saved what she did have.
